The dragon riders' academy accepted one new student every hundred years. This year, to everyone's surprise, it had chosen Bea.

Years 5–6 · ages 9–11

The dragon had grown so lonely that its fire had turned pale blue, said the healer, and there was only one cure.

Years 5–6 · ages 9–11

Every dragon has a true name, and whoever learns it can ask the dragon for one thing. Rowan had just overheard it.

Years 5–6 · ages 9–11

The scale was as big as a dinner plate, hot to the touch and humming faintly, and it had been delivered by first-class post.

Years 5–6 · ages 9–11

For centuries, the dragons and the people of the valley had kept a treaty. This morning, someone had broken it.

Years 5–6 · ages 9–11

Nobody told Ezra that dragons sulk, and that when they sulk, it rains for a week.

Years 5–6 · ages 9–11

The museum's dragon skeleton had been a fake for as long as anyone could remember. So why had it grown a new tooth?
